Catherine Mason General order 40 8-6-01

What Do You Know About Sexual Harassment? - A PreTest
Mark your response to each of the following. True or False.

1. F A subject of a sexual harassment complaint may avoid liability by demonstrating that the target's dress or appearance "invited" sexual comments.

2. F You observe two male workers in the hallway as a female worker walks by. The men stop talking and "look her up and down" as she passes. One man smiles at the other man, lifts his eyebrows and nods in the woman's direction. The woman saw the men, but did not acknowledge them. She has not complained to you, or any other member of the leadership team. No follow-up action is necessary until a complaint is received.

3. T Sexual harassment is a form of discrimination prohibited by federal law.

4. F The absence of sexual harassment complaints in your section is a good indication that sexual harassment is not occurring there.

5. F What may be sexual harassment to a recipient will not form the basis for liability if the person making the comments or doing the behavior can establish he meant nothing by them.

6. F In most cases, it is okay for a recipient of alleged "quid pro quo" (sex for promotion, favored treatment, etc.) sexual harassment to personally meet with the alleged harasser to address her concerns and to end the harassment.

7. F Good-intentioned, fun-loving, or playful physical contact or comments that may possibly be considered be of sexual nature are not forms of actionable sexual harassment.

8. F An agency can be held accountable for sexual harassment of employees committed by an outside vendor visiting the premises.

9. T What is sexual harassment to one person may not be sexual harassment to another person who heard the same comment or was subjected to the same behavior.

10. F You hear rumors that an older agency member who has been with the agency for many years has been sexually harassing a new young female worker assigned to your unit, and that the woman has been visibly upset by the older member's conduct. The older member has a reputation of telling sex-based jokes, but "meaning nothing by it" when he says it. No complaint has been received. To be fair to all involved, you should avoid involvement as a supervisor unless and until a complaint has been lodged.

11. T A co-worker who was once romantically involved with another co-worker can claim sexual harassment if the former co-worker continues to make comments of an unwelcome sexual nature to her.

12. F A group of workers have worked together for years. Over time, they have developed a "group sense of humor" that often has resulted in risqué jokes being told or sexually explicit cartoons being circulated. No one in the group appears offended by the jokes or cartoons. As long as the group keeps the humor within the group, there is no cause for concern about sexual harassment liability.

13. T Supervisors may be liable for sexual harassment occurring under their watch only if it can be established that the supervisor had actual knowledge of the harassment situation and failed to respond appropriately.

14. F While sexual harassment may subject agency members to disciplinary action, retaliation against a complainant by one or more members of an agency is not an appropriate basis for disciplinary response.

15. F A recipient of alleged harassment discusses her concerns with you, and asks you to do no more because "All I wanted to do was to talk to someone." Since the complainant has voluntarily waived an interest in agency follow-up, once you have documented the meeting, no further action will be necessary.
